

Bruno Angelo – composition classes (online)

How does it work?

Classes are organized as live meeting sessions with Bruno Angelo (Zoom or Skype). In these sessions, ongoing composition projects by students are analysed and discussed. At the beginning, students are encouraged to define their own projects, addressing any musical style or media they want, aiming at presenting finished works in periodic concerts (streamed and commented via YouTube).

To whom it is directed?

To any person who wishes to develop creativity through sound or music, regardless of previous knowledge or education. Classes can be built upon any technical support for sounds, such as recordings and musical performances, addressing any musical style, experimental sound art, or a mix of approaches. Technical knowledges will be taught according to the demands that appear throughout the creative process of each student. Classes can be held in portuguese, spanish or english.
